WHAT CONSTITUTES A GREAT TROTTER

What must a trotter be or do to merit the word "great" to be placed before its name?

Some men use the word in describing a good, a 2nd. class or even an inferior trotter. Others go to the opposite extreme and rob really great trotters of a just reputation.

Am writing this with the hope of getting the opinion of men who are in a position to know of what they are talking, men who have developed or watched the development of trotters to such a degree as to be able to write a sensible definition of what it takes to make a really great trotter. I confess ignorance, also desire for knowledge, for though I love the business, and have been breeding and developing speed, and watching trotting races for 30 years, am uncertain as to the requirements of a really great trotter; yet when I listen to the opinions, both oral and written of men, whom I know never bred or developed speed, but who are so sure of their opinions, am more at sea than ever. To my thinking it takes a lot of qualities besides speed to make a great trotter. They must have stamina, to be able to stand the punishment, they must have courage to keep on trying every inch of the way. They must have intelligence to take advantage of every offered opportunity and above all things they must want to win and take pleasure in trying to do so. For example we will take the 5 year-old mare Sienna, 2:06 3/4, 4th largest money winner of 1914, winner of $17,800.

Have a friend who I esteem highly, a talented young man, a gifted writer, a hard worker, one destined to shine in his impression, yet he says: "Sienna is a good trotter, a consistent race mare, one to be depended upon for all she can do, but in no sense a great trotter," at same time he says "that Lassie McGregor, Margaret Druin and Peter Scott are all great trotters." No one denies greatness to these three, yet Sienna in her races was (some time in her career) able to beat each and every one of them, as shown by race summaries.

Sienna started in nine races, won 6, was 2nd. in 2 and divided 2nd. and 3rd. money in the other. She tried to win every race in which she was started, putting up a game fight in each. I never saw her but from all reports she seems to fill all the requirements that I claim a trotter should have in order to be great.

She met the best trotters of her class, both in the "Great Western" and Grand Circuit, beat them all in former, and more than held her own in latter. Her 1st. start was at North Randall, O., she beat Margaret Druin and a great field in 7 1/4, 8, and 8 1/4, 2nd. race was at Detroit, won with ease in 9 1/2, 9 1/4, 10 1/4, 3rd. race, Grand Rapids, beat Margaret Druin 1st, and drove her out in the next 3 with the $30,000, Peter Scott behind her. Her 4th race was the $10,000, Paper Mill Stake beating Lassie McGregor 1st. heat in 2:07 1/2 and was beaten by Lassie in 6 1/4, 6 3/4, and 6 3/4. This was the hardest fought, and most sensational race ever trotted for this much coveted stake. Fifth race was at Galesburg, easy for her in 7 3/4, 12 3/4 and 9 3/4. Sixth race was at the $10,000 Empire Stake, Margaret won in 6 1/2, 6 3/4 and 8 3/4, Sienna trotting 3rd, 2nd. and 4th, dividing 2nd and 3rd. money with McClosky, with the great Lassie McGregor behind her. Seventh race was the noted Charter Oak for $10,000, Sienna won over a field of very great trotters in 7 1/4. Her 8th. race was in the "Great Western" at Milwaukee. She had to trot three sensational heats in 7 3/4, 8 3/4 and 7 flat, to beat a field of very fast horses. The 9th. and last race was for $5,000 stake at the Illinois State Fair. This was an easy win for her in 10 1/2, 9 3/4 and 10 1/2. In her 5-year-old form she met and defeated horses with as much or more speed than hers and the times she was unable to beat them she made them go the races of their lives to beat her. No one denies greatness to Lassie, Margaret and Peter Scott. Why then is not Sienna in the same class? I claim she is, and in some respects the greatest trotter of them all, for she met and defeated the best trotters of the Great Western, and they did not, meeting only the horses of the Grand Circuit.

Sienna is, as all great trotters should be, viz: a "great bred one," Peter The Great is without question the greatest living sire. Her dam the Widow, (3) 2:28 1/2, trial, 2:23, is now one of the greatest of broodmares and will be greater later on. She now is dam of Sienna, 2:06 3/4, Peter W., 2:08 1/2, Miss Stokes, (3-) 2:10 1/2, Maggie Onward, trial, 2:09 1/4, (dam of 3. Lola, trial, 2:10, Peter Montgomery, (sire of 1). The Great Widower, and Widower Peter, both prospective 2:10 trotters. Her two foals of 13 and 14 are born trotters, and her family is not yet complete. She is by Wilton, 2:19 1/4, her dam has produced 8 and her grand-dam two trotters.

ARE YOU GUILTY

An editor a thousand miles from here met with the following experience! It appears that certain business men in the town where he conducted his paper discovered citizens going to their neighboring towns buying goods that they handled. On making inquiries, they found that their town editor, in order to meet his expenses and make an honest and respectable living, was advertising their goods for them. They at once prepared a petition protesting against this practice and with their names on it took it to him. The protest, however, was drawn on a letter-head of one of the firms that had been printed in another town. When he called their attention to this, the delegation left, sadder and wiser men, for they saw their own conduct towards their own printer had caused the home printer to look outside for financial help in running his business.

LOVE RETAINED

In our estimation there is no subject of more interest to womankind than that of retaining a husband's love. Of course when a young couple start to make the home nest they are surrounded with the glow of romance and sentimentalism, and life seems all rose-tinted. But by degrees the stern, prosaic side of life is shown, and for the first time they realize that life is not all a bed of roses; that there is bitter mingled with the sweet. Gradually they get accustomed to each other's society. He does not rush home as eagerly as in the first few weeks of their married life. One day he is much later than usual in coming home to dinner, and she is careless about his company, too; so she has gone out to see a neighbor; he has to go in the dining room and eat dinner alone. He means to go home quite early that evening by way of atonement, but unfortunately business detains, and it is a little later than usual ere he can leave his office, but he hurries home because he knows, or thinks he does, that someone is waiting to welcome him; but, alas for human hopes. When he reaches home instead of the radiant face and bewitching smile which he expected to see, his wife has retired; she feels so much aggrieved that not one pleasant word does she say to him. She means to teach him that his society is not of so much importance after all, and—well, he learns the lesson. Next evening he stops for a chat with an old chum, finds it very pleasant to resume past relations and be "one of the boys" again. And so that tiny rift within the lute has wrought discord in the once happy home. She wonders why he no longer courts her society as of yore. Let us whisper a word of advice right here. Let your husband know by word and deed that there are no hours so sweet as those spent by the bedside with him; that you prefer his company to all others. Make your home so bright and attractive that he will be anxious to spend all the time he can in the cozy little nook and last, but not least, make yourself as charming as possible. You need not think he does not care how you look. Oh, yes, he does, and you should curl your bangs or crimp your hair as prettily and dress as becomingly as when you were a girl and dressed to meet your lover.—Shelby Record.

MORE STRENGTH FOR OLD PEOPLE

Mrs. Hutchison—Eighty-One Years Old—Uses No Other Tonic but Vinol and Recommends it to Friends.

Greenville, S. C.—"It is with pleasure I tell others of the great benefit I have derived from Vinol, for the past several years. I am 81 years old and I find Vinol gives me strength, a healthy appetite and overcomes nervous disorders. Vinol is the only tonic reconstructor I have used for several years. I have recommended it to a great many of my friends and it has always proved satisfactory."—Mrs. M. A. HUTCHISON, Greenville, S. C.

Such cases as the above are constantly coming to our attention. If people in this vicinity only realized how Vinol invigorates old people we would not be able to supply the demand. It is the tissue building, curative elements of the cod's livers, aided by the blood making strengthening properties of tonic iron contained in Vinol, that makes it so successful in building up strength for old people, delicate children and for all run-down conditions. Vinol is also a most successful remedy for chronic coughs, colds and bronchitis. If it fails to benefit any one who tries it we return your money.

NEW TREATMENT

FOR PNEUMONIA

There is much skepticism with regard to new remedies and new treatments for family diseases. The intelligent element of the population has become somewhat inured to disappointments in this line and is dubious about discoveries.

Two Chicago physicians, Dr. C. Morton Ilman and Dr. William E. Robertson, have given out some interesting information recently with reference to a new treatment for pneumonia. They express the belief that this treatment, which they have applied with much success for a period of several weeks, will revolutionize the prevailing methods of combating pneumonia and will greatly reduce the mortality due to that disease.

Drs. Ilman and Robertson have treated twenty pneumonia patients recently at the Samaritan Hospital and they claim that a majority of these patients recovered in half the time required under former medical methods. According to a statement by Dr. Ilman the treatment consists in the injection, as early as possible in the progress of the disease, of a safe solution of formalin in a normal salt solution. The combination, it is claimed, act directly on the infecting germ and a crisis is brought about within twenty-four to forty-eight hours. This shortens the usual course of the malady by a number of days.

In one case, in which both lungs were congested badly and which was complicated by pleurisy, the injection is reported to have worked perfectly, having relieved the congestion within thirty-six hours. Ordinarily, according to Dr. Ilman, this congestion would have continued for nine days, and, with complications, most likely would have proven fatal. In another case there was a still more rapid absorption of the congested lung, and a complete recovery of the patient was wrought in less than half the time possible under the old method.

So far the two Chicago physicians have applied their treatment only in the hospital because of the desirability of keeping their patients under constant observation. In taking the public into their confidence they manifest a disposition to make no extravagant claims and to keep no one in the dark as to the experiments they have made. If further experience shall confirm the beneficial results of the treatment material progress will have been made in contending against a difficult and dangerous malady.

Pneumonia is widely prevalent among all ages and all classes. A treatment which will shorten the usual course of the disease should bring about a material reduction in the incident mortality.—Courier Journal.

ASSISTANT FIRE

MARSHAL HERE

Mr. Edward M. Hite, Assistant State Fire Marshal, was here last week and made an inspection of the local fire department, the water works and the public school and praised Mt. Sterling's facilities for fire fighting very highly but made a few recommendations. At the school he suggested that chemical extinguishers be installed and Board will take the matter up at its next meeting. Mr. Hite will return here in a few weeks and make a few tests to demonstrate his method of fire protection.

ABOUT BAD ROADS

There are some bad roads in Kentucky. The rural correspondents are reporting that the mud is "knee deep and deeper" in many localities. But there seems to be bad roads elsewhere than in Kentucky. We were looking over a copy of the Little Rock, Ark., Gazette a few days ago and were especially struck by the numerous references to bad roads in a column devoted to clippings from the State newspapers. One correspondent says he drove from Round Mountain to Morriston and didn't find but one mudhole, and that was about ten miles long. There are sundry other references to the subject, the best of all coming from the Maytower correspondent of the Arkansas Farmer. That enterprising newsgatherer perpetrates the following:

"J. C. Duke, went to Little Rock Monday. He said when he reached Marche he saw a chicken peddler whipping the ground with his black-snake whip. Duke asked 'what are you whipping the ground for?' The peddler replied, 'watch close,' and Duke said he did and in a short time he saw a wagon and team come out of the mud.—State Journal.

PEACHES KILLED

Mr. H. Van Antwerp, the orchardist, of Farmers, Ky., this county reports that the prospect for peaches next season is exceedingly slim. Peaches are borne on the new wood of last year's growth. The early half of last season was unusually dry and this growth of new wood and fruit buds took place to late in the season, that the buds went into winter quarters full of sap and not mature. The unheated of cold spell in December, when the thermometer ranged from 6 to 12 degrees below zero for three nights, and the work as an examination of the peach buds clearly shows. It is a rare thing to find a live one and that only on the short spurs near the trunk center of the tree. It is rather discouraging, but conditions responsible are unusual and might never happen again and no one unwilling to take a gambler's chance has any place in the peach business.

Apple buds are of an older growth and seem to have fared much better. Both crops however, are of course still subject to late frosts, this spring.—The Mountaineer.

SHERIFF HOWELL MAKES SETTLEMENT

Sheriff Harry Howell has made his final settlement with the Auditor at Frankfort, and received his quietus. He paid into the State Treasury the sum of $37,074.59. Mr. Howell has also settled in part with Treasurer Charles T. Hazelrigg, the sum of $46,277.90, leaving only the small sum of $2,905.34 yet to be paid which amount is due from the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad company as a franchise tax. The showing made by Mr. Howell in his first year in office is an excellent one, and he has collected all taxes due, except a small amount.

NICE COMPLIMENT

Senator Camden's refusal to get into the Governor's race has been received with an outburst of regret on the part of people all over the State which might well gratify any man, not to mention the friends who say that they will not take no, but will put him into the race anyway.

When I consider this, and Senator Camden's entire course in politics, it seems to me to be a very powerful advantage that comes to a man by simple, straightforward dealing with the people instead of trafficking with the politicians. The office of Governor could add nothing, either of dignity or honor, to the standing which Senator Camden already has.—Woodford Sun.

SAD BUT TRUE

The Luke McLuke column in the Enquirer is now copyrighted, and some rural pen pushers who have gained quite a reputation for wit by using his "stuff" and forgetting to credit it, will have to sit up o' nights to preserve that reputation.
